CHICAGO'S WAY OF GETTING THEM

Council. The ways and means committee of 350 members holds meetings every week, at which are initiated and carried out plans for municipal improvement. Recently at one of these meetings there were present the Mayor, twelve other high executive officers and nineteen members of the City Council. The gathering was very like a city convention.

Speaking generally of what has been done, Vice-President Allen A. Bond, one of the leading business men of Chicago, said the other day to a new-paper reporter: "Among our members are found merchants and physicians, engineers and ministers, all working for Chicago. We are wondering how it all happened. What has been the effect of all this on the growth of our city? We have established an esprit de corps that is amazing—an association spirit, a pride of citizenship, a zeal of activity both within and without our organization that are a mighty force in the development of Chicago."

Note the Object Lesson.
What Mr. Bond says illustrates a fact long known in the effect that in no other large city of the country has there been a stronger or more effective home-rule force than there has been in this wonder of the West.

Now all of this is not written in the Industrial Section as an advertisement for Chicago or for the Chicago Association of Commerce, but it is written as a pointer to Richmond, and Peter-burg and Norfolk and Lynchburg and Danville and Staunton and Roanoke and Portsmouth and Newport News, and all of the other good towns of Virginia.
